FOREIGN REFUGEES POUR INTO HONGKONG

While foreign refugees, including many Americans, are pouring into strike ridden Hongkong from the foreign settlement Shamen at Canton, British and Indian troops are being dispatched to Sharmeen from Hongkong. This move followed a clash yesterday at Canton involving Chinese students and British marines in which one Frenchman was killed and several British wounded slightly, indicating the British intend to cover Sharmeen with arms if necessary.

It takes in added significance in view of the Hongkong dispatch relating that before the British marines replied to the Chinese fire, the British consul had warned the Canton government that any Chinese attempts to enter the foreign concessions would be forcibly resisted and the government held responsible.

TEDDY BEAR GARB VALUABLE EVIDENCE FOR MR. VALUE'S WIFE

New York, June 24.—This one was a question of values.

Mrs. Dorothy Value sued her husband, Beverly M. Value, a wealthy Chicago automobile dealer, for separation.

The issue seemed to center on the value as evidence of a pink silk teddy-bear, which detectives said was all that a "beautiful blonde" were when found with Value, and also of the scant garb of Value at the same time.

Referee Hazelton apparently deemed the teddy-bear testimony very valuable indeed, for he recommended that the separation be granted.

STATE'S ATTORNEY DEMANDS
DEATH PENALTY FOR SHEPHERD

Criminal Court Room, Chicago, June 24.—William Darling Shepherd has indirectly confessed to the murder of Billy McClintock, the state charged today in its argument to the jury for Shepherd's conviction.

George E. Gorman, first assistant state's attorney, made the charge as he resumed the address he started yesterday.

"This man Shepherd," Gorman declared, "had a guilty conscience and the voice of his conscience lead him to make incriminating statements against himself. Though he never said, 'I killed Billy McClintock,' he offered alibis and excuses and he fled from town. 'Those were indirect confessions of his guilt and you, gentlemen, should keep them in your mind.'"

STEWART DEFENSE COUNSEL ARGUMENT

Criminal Court Room, Chicago, June 24.—"Money is the root of all evil, and it is at the bottom of this case," William Scott Stewart, chief counsel for William Shepherd, declared today in his argument for Shepherd's acquittal.

"But in this case, Billy McClintock had a lot of money and there are a lot of people who are jealous because Billy gave it to Shepherd. That is why Shepherd is being prosecuted and persecuted."

Stewart made a bitter attack against Dr. C. Fauman, president of the National University of Sciences, the man who confessed giving typhoid germs to Shepherd for the purpose of murdering young McClintock. DEATH HOVERS OVER TUBERCULARS SAYS AN EXPERT

PERSONS SO AFFLICTED ARE 15
TIMES MORE LIABLE TO DIE

STATISTICIAN OF METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE CO MAKES STATEMENT

(By United Press)
Minneapolis, June 24.—Persons afflicted with tuberculosis are fifteen times more liable to die than persons who do not have the disease, according to a statement made before the National Tuberculosis Association by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Dr. Dublin pointed out that at least 800,000 persons have passed through the tuberculosis sanatoria of the United States in the last ten years, of whom close to 600,000 are still alive and showing the benefits of reduced mortality in their respective communities.

"The conclusion to be drawn, therefore," said Dr. Dublin, "is that there are 6,000 less deaths in this group of patients who have had treatment in sanatoria than if no sanatorium beds were available. The chances of longer life for patients who have been to tuberculosis sanatoria and received proper treatment are considerably greater than for those who do not receive such treatment."

"A tuberculosis death rate of 50 per 100,000 population by 1,930 one half of that at the present time will, I believe, be found to be not far from the actual figure in that year. The tuberculosis hospitals in particular have contributed largely to the present decline in the tuberculosis death rate."

ITE WITH CIVIC CLUBS

Chairman S. R. Adair of ticket sales announces he wishes to meet all ticket sellers and guarantors in the lobby of the Park Theatre this evening.

Program Tuesday
The program Tuesday was an excellent one and aroused much enthusiasm. Instead of a formal fluttering of handkerchiefs to voice a silent tribute, the audience gave good, old fashioned applause that could be heard.

At the evening performance the Clarke concert company appeared in colonial costume and sang the songs that were in vogue a century ago.

George M. Palmer spoke in the afternoon on "Joan of Arc" and in the evening on "The Road to Victory."

The professor has had war experience and has been a teacher in the Philippines and his lecture is the result of some 20 years of observation.

Wednesday Program

The program Wednesday includes the Chicago Mixed Quartet which occupies the program in full in the afternoon and in the evening takes the rostrum at 7:30 P. M. The quartet is composed of Gertrude Farrell, soprano; Helen Mueller, contralto; Eugene Dressler, tenor; Harry Hadyn Thomas, basso. The accompanist is Evelyn Mayes. Every member of this organization has taken leading parts in outstanding musical events. You will like their selections, the quality of their music, and their personalities.

"Dusty" Miller, a community speaker, will deliver his message at 8:30 P. M. He has a message that will attract many of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotarians, the Lions, all interested in civic welfare. "Dusty," as his name would indicate, offers no smoke screen to lure you into the realms of satisfaction with yourself, but voices his points in such picturesque language that he jars your self-consciousness and has you interested in spite of yourself. As a great civic evangelist, "Dusty" Miller is declared to be without a peer.

DEATH HOVERS OVER TUBERCULARS SAYS AN EXPERT

PERSONS SO AFFLICTED ARE 15 TIMES MORE LIABLE TO DIE

STATISTICIAN OF METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE CO MAKES STATEMENT

(By United Press)
Minneapolis, June 24.—Persons afflicted with tuberculosis are fifteen times more liable to die than persons who do not have the disease, according to a statement made before the National Tuberculosis Association by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Dr. Dublin pointed out that at least 800,000 persons have passed through the tuberculosis sanatoria of the United States in the last ten years, of whom close to 600,000 are still alive and showing the benefits of reduced mortality in their respective communities.

"The conclusion to be drawn, therefore," said Dr. Dublin, "is that there are 6,000 less deaths in this group of patients who have had treatment in sanatoria than if no sanatorium beds were available. The chances of longer life for patients who have been to tuberculosis sanatoria and received proper treatment are considerably greater than for those who do not receive such treatment."

"A tuberculosis death rate of 50 per 100,000 population by 1930 one half of that at the present time will, I believe, be found to be not far from the actual figure in that year. The tuberculosis hospitals in particular have contributed largely to the present decline in the tuberculosis death rate."

CHICAGO MIXED QUARTET AND "DUSTY" MILLER

HIGH QUALITY OF MUSIC RE- VEALED IN THE SELEC- TIONS

LECTURER MILLER IS A FAVOR- ITE WITH CIVIC CLUBS

The Chautauqua is gaining more friends at every performance and the attendance is showing an appreciable increase. Platform managers are Rev. N. P. Olmsted and H. F. Michael, the former officiating afternoons and the latter in the evening.

Chairman S. R. Adair of ticket sales announces he wishes to meet all ticket sellers and guarantors in the lobby of the Park Theatre this evening.

Program Tuesday

The program Tuesday was an excellent one and aroused much enthusiasm. Instead of a formal fluttering of handkerchiefs to voice a silent tribute, the audience gave good, old fashioned applause that could be heard.

At the evening performance the Clarke concert company appeared in colonial costume and sang the songs that were in vogue a century ago.

George M. Palmer spoke in the afternoon on "Joan of Arc" and in the evening on "The Road to Victory."

The professor has had war experience and has been a teacher in the Philippines and his lecture is the result of some 20 years of observation.

Wednesday Program

The program Wednesday includes the Chicago Mixed Quartet which occupies the program in full in the afternoon and in the evening takes the rostrum at 7:30 P. M. The quartet is composed of Gertrude Farrell, soprano; Helen Mueller, contralto; Eugene Dressler, tenor; Harry Hady Thomas, basso. The accompanist is Evelyn Mayes. Every member of this organization has taken leading parts in outstanding musical events. You will like their selections, the quality of their music, and their personalities.

"Dusty" Miller, a community speaker, will deliver his message at 8:30 P. M. He has a message that will attract many of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotarians, the Lions, all interested in civic welfare. "Dusty," as his name would indicate, offers no smoke screen to lull you into the realms of satisfaction with yourself, but voices his points in such picturesque language that he jars your self-consciousness and has you interested in spite of yourself. As a great civic evangelist, "Dusty" Miller is declared to be without a peer.

Thursday Program

Thursday brings to Brainerd two of the greatest lecturers on the American platform today. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon Dr. Roy L. Smith, minister of one of the biggest Methodist churches in Minneapolis, a writer of "Sentence Sermons," will take the platform. He was billed to speak here the first evening of the Chautauqua but through an error missed his appointment. He comes to us now on Thursday afternoon.

Thursday evening, following the Schubert orchestral sextette, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman will lecture. He has been declared America's greatest preacher. He is a church-statesman as well as a prophet. His topic will be "The Mission of the Republic."

The Schubert orchestral sextette, heard afternoon and evening, has won an enviable reputation as a remarkable musical organization. Instrumentation includes a harpist.

Friday Program

Friday's program, afternoon and evening, features the Bennett Dramatic Company. At 3 P. M. they present "Fine Feathers," a domestic drama.

At 7:45 P. M. they present the favorite play, "Peg O' My Heart," a great comedy.

BRAIN PROMISES LEGION'S HELP IN DEFENSE DAY TEST

Indianapolis, Ind., June 24.—The American Legion will cooperate fully with the government in making Defense Test day as much of a success this July 4 as it was last September 12, James A. Drain, national commander, promised in a special message to all Legionnaires made public in the American Legion Weekly.

While the American Legion at its St. Paul convention declared its preference for September 12 as the day upon which to take stock of the nation's defense, Commander Drain pointed out that the Legion valued the deed above the day and accepts the change in the best of spirit.

"That best spirit," the message declares, "will be one of intelligent cooperation. Last year the Legion was a very important factor in the observance of Defense Test day. This year, with the experience of a year ago behind it, the Legion can work to even better advantage in helping the government impress on the public mind the necessity for and value of an annual stock-taking of our means of defense.

"Defense Test day is a laboratory experiment based on a theory of defense, known as the National Defense act. That act has been in existence for five years. Not until last year was the effort made to apply a test of its efficiency. The test generally succeeded; where it did not fully succeed the War department secured valuable data which it could have obtained by no other method.

"In passing, let me say that I have always been dissatisfied with the use of the words 'War department' for what is really a department of national defense, better still, a peace department. What we call the War department exists in peace to plan and carry out those military arrangements which shall be most useful in avoiding war and of greatest value in bringing to an early and successful conclusion any war which may be forced upon us. In war it functions to make available all the resources of the nation to bring quick and sure victory.

"Not also that we of the Legion are aware that we can no more have peace by simply wishing for it than we can change a tiger into a toment by forgetting that he is a tiger.

"All of us who by our service under arms helped to bring peace out of war are committed to peace-time service as citizens which shall keep war out of peace. We foresee and strive for permanent world peace, based upon understanding among nations, without which there can be no peace.

"What the Legion did last September it will do this July 4: put at the disposal of its country whatever ability it possesses, whatever experience it gained in history's greatest war, for the benefit of an experiment, which has as its objective the security of our country and the preservation of peace."

up in a little observatory near the rim of the bubbling crater.

You find them on Taal, in the Philippines, and on Vesuvius, on Kilanea, in the Hawaiian, and on Asama, in Japan. In addition to the permanent stations, temporary observatories are set up, ever and anon, by parties of "watchdogs" well versed in the ways of earthquakes and eruptions, when word comes of a volcano that apparently intends to give trouble.

The practical result of all the steadily accumulating mass of observations is a dossier of data that enables many an eruption to be foreseen in time to give warnings as to its probable extent and direction, so that lives can be saved and property removed from what, it is realized, will be the track of lava rivers. Sometimes these warnings can be given even weeks ahead.

The town of St. Pierre, Martinique, that was overwhelmed by Mount Pelee, had a fortnight's warning, but neglected to profit by it.

One of the most exciting experiences of "volcano watchdogs" of recent years was during the big eruption of Kilanea, when a party of plucky American volcanologists camped all night at the foot of a line of fountains of fiery froth three times the height of Cleopatra's Needle. It was a splendid spectacle, the blindingly incandescent molten rock spurting up in continuous jets from the fountain cones, like monstrous roman candles. For all their intrepidity, however, they must have had bad moments of feeling that home was not such a bad place after all when, about 3 o'clock in the morning, 1,000 fiery fountains "put a little more pep into it" and shot up to greater height than St. Paul's cathedral, London. The river of lava that ensued after this first blow-off of gas flowed 12 miles down the forested mountain-side to the sea.

You find them on Tual, in the Philippines, and on Vesuvius, on Kilauwa, in the Hawaiians, and on Asama, in Japan. In addition to the permanent stations, temporary observatories are set up, ever and anon, by parties of "watchdogs" well versed in the ways of earthquakes and eruptions, when word comes of a volcano that apparently intends to give trouble.

The practical result of all the steadily accumulating mass of observations is a dossier of data that enables many an eruption to be foreseen in time to give warnings as to its probable extent and direction, so that lives can be saved and property removed from what, it is realized, will be the track of lava rivers. Sometimes these warnings can be given even weeks ahead. The town of St. Pierre, Martinique, that was overwhelmed by Mount Pelee, had a fortnight's warning, but neglected to profit by it.

One of the most exciting experiences of "volcano watchdogs" of recent years was during the big eruption of Kilauwa, when a party of plucky American volcanologists camped all night at the foot of a line of fountains of fiery froth three times the height of Cleopatra's Needle. It was a splendid spectacle, the blindingly incandescent molten rock spurting up in continuous jets from the fountain cones, like monstrous roman candles. For all their intrepidity, however, they must have had bad moments of feeling that home was not such a bad place after all when, about 3 o'clock in the morning, the fiery fountains "put a little more pep into it" and shot up to greater height than St. Paul's cathedral, London. The river of lava that ensued after this first blow-off of gas flowed 12 miles down the forested mountain-side to the sea.

FLEET'S VISIT AIDS FRIENDSHIP WITH AUSTRALIA

WILL INTENSIFY CORDIAL RELATIONS WITH ANTI-PODES

HANDS-ACROSS-PACIFIC TO BECOME A REALITY

(By United Press)
Washington, June 24.—The forthcoming visit of the United States fleet to Australia will intensify the cordial feelings which have prevailed between the United States and the lands of the Antipodes since the World War, in the opinion of many international experts here.

While relations between these countries have always been friendly there was a notable growth in chummy feeling as the result of personal contact of the American soldiers with the Australians during the war. Popular good will continued to grow after the war through the participation of Australia in the Washington armament limitation conference, and was given further stimulus by the development of similar views regarding Oriental immigration.

When the vessels of the fleet call at Australian and New Zealand ports, therefore, the Hands-Across-the-Pacific sentiment will have become a genuine reality.

The new feeling of neighborliness between the United States and the lands in the far south has been accompanied by the favorable development of commercial, cultural and other relations. For the first time in history, Australia in the month of April was the first market for American trans-Pacific exports, having surpassed Japan. Australia in that month purchased United States goods valued at $14,387,000, and took first rank among countries of the world in the purchase of American automobiles. American sales of petroleum in Australia were $1,200,000 greater than in April of last year.

Another remarkable indication of closer relations between the United States and the Antipodes is afforded by the fact that duplication of the Pacific Cable has been found necessary. This cable, connecting Bamfield, British Columbia, with the southern commonwealths, is British-owned and operated, but it is estimated that approximately fifty-five per cent of the traffic is from and to the United States. The duplication will cost 2,379,000 pounds sterling and is expected to be completed in September, 1926.

The growing relations are by no means confined to commerce. Australian experts in many fields of endeavor have visited the United States in recent years to obtain the benefits of American experience. Australian banking legislation has been to a considerable extent modeled in the light of experience of the Federal Reserve Bank. Australians have also been particularly interested in American methods in railway transportation and irrigation projects.

A short time ago Australian officials traveled in this country to study state legislative and administrative methods, as the reconciling of provincial with commonwealth governments is a considerable problem in Australia, as it has always been in the United States.

The people of Australia and New Zealand, it is said, are especially interested in American publications; and one well-known American periodical recently found that it could not supply all the copies that were desired and was obliged arbitrarily to limit its circulation.

While the United States has derived the immediate advantages of all these developments, far-sighted officials of Australia are looking ahead to the time when the United States will afford a tremendous market for Australian products. The industrial growth of the United States and the rapid increase of population in the cities of the West Coast foreshadow the time when this country will be a far heavier purchaser of Australian supplies. Meanwhile the growing feeling of neighborliness adds a strong link to the chain of Anglo-Australian solidarity.

New Fashions for Tots and Misses

Wealth of Fabrics and Colors Provided by Creators of Styles.

It is a fascinating occupation, this creating of costumes, with their changes and variations, for the junior members of a family. There is no other having to do with dress and style that makes such sharp demand upon taste and energy. To meet the requirements of young aspirations and preferences one must have imagination, and that something that perhaps only memory supplies, says a fashion writer in the New York Times.

There is no more chic young person today than the American baby from her christening robe to her graduation dress, and the ideal of each of these and all of her wardrobe may usually be traced to the atelier of some well-known Parisian couturiere. The span across the ocean has been narrowing as much for the younger as for the full-grown butterfly, and Paris now offers models for children's dress that challenge the designers of the world.

These styles for children, as translated by American modistes, offer the answer to every need. To begin with the infant class, little frocks are to be had in the fine cottons. These have been introduced this season in imitation of others highly prized for their true worth long years ago. Percale is an antique to the present generation. But it is offered under a new name with an unqualified indorsement for its quality, durability and wholly respectable aspect.

Now one finds the smartest little morning frocks, play dresses and outfits meant for hard wear made of the English prints—the equivalent of percale. These are a perennial comfort, for they wash, always look fresh, have a bit of warmth, and will outwear the stature of the wearer.

The latest printed materials, the crepes, indestructible voiles, chiffons, are all shown in the summer frocks for girls. For the littlest one small patterns are used, and some adorable dresses are made of plain goods in three colors joined to form the entire garment. A party dress copied from a Paris model is made of pale rose, corn silk yellow and light blue, joined Organdie and Pastel Shades for the Young Miss.

In equal spaces with a fancy crocheted stitch of floss. Extreme styles include some unusual little costumes of sweetly tinted organdie or chiffon on which a flower motif is painted, a rose or a tiny nosegay. These are the prettiest frocks imaginable, as delicate and quaint as an ivory miniature.

The dressing of a young lady who has grown to the stature when lines and silhouette are important presents a more important problem, and much compensation. For her there is a larger variety of material, of color and pattern, and the season's market offers a wealth of all these, especially in the printed goods. The most striking novelty in conception is the Ferrolle design carried through all the fine crepes and silks. These printed goods illustrate an achievement in style and grace and have an enduring artistic appeal. The colors and combinations are most original and are shown in so many variants that a frock of this fabric may be suitable for many different occasions.

The new chiffons present all the charming colors now in vogue—periwinkle blue, cyclamen, petunia, shell, salmon, rose, the cool greens, flower yellows and every tint that may be found in a flower garden.

Drawn Silk Flowers

Drawn silk threads are now being extensively used as trimmings for new summer headgear. Of them are made large flowers which usually are poised on the side of the crown of the rather high wide-brimmed bangkok straws.

Large Combs Again

Large combs and elaborately carved hairpins are being shown for the new coiffures that make use of the chignon.

Speeding us Lightly Away

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

Over the hills to the heart of the woodland,
Out to the nooks where the brooks gaily call,
Down to the farm with its orchards and meadows,
Back to the pool when the cool shadows fall—
Over the landscape of hillside and valley,
Eager to view where the beauty-spots are,
Bound for retreats of romantic enchantment—
Glad is the day when we play in our car.

Life has become so intensely delightful
Now that the world is unfurled at our door;
Friendship has made a companion of distance,
Bringing those dear to us nearer once more.
Open today is the pathway to freedom,
Calling us out with a shout gladly heard;
Laughter has caught a new cadence of rapture—
Notes that belong in the song of a bird.

Happiness comes on the wings of the morning,
Speeding us lightly and brightly away,
Off to the portals of lasting contentment
There to begin and continue the day.
Learning the wonderful secrets of nature,
Reading her glorious story afar,
Freely we join in a carol of praises—
Spirits are gay when we play in our car!

Dog Adopts Chicks

Reversing the recent case in which a Rhode Island Red hen adopted a litter of puppies a four-year-old poodle, owned by Theodore Gauthier of West Springfield, Mass., is playing mother to a brood of 15 chicks, the Philadelphia Public Ledger says.

The chicks, incubator born, attracted the poodle's attention when brought home by Mr. Gauthier. Finally the poodle was allowed to adopt them after much whining and refusing to eat. The chicks are being brought up with an abnormal tendency to cleanliness, for Fifi licks them as she would a puppy.

Fire Destroys Wild Life

The greatest single agency of wild life destruction is the forest fire, so we are informed by government officials.

For eight years, from 1917 to 1924, the average annual number of forest fires in this country was 41,000. During this time 9,000,000 acres of forest land was burned over each year or an area twice that of Upper and Lower Michigan was destroyed by the red devastator. This loss totals over $18,000,000 annually.

Austrian Interest Rates

Although interest rates were reduced in Austria recently, the minimum rate per year for short-term loans to first-class firms is approximately 10.5 per cent.

TEACHES WATER SAFETY

THE coming visit of the representative of the life saving department of the Red Cross is a most valuable one and the only fault we have to find is that the expert does not come before August 10 and 11. The special purpose is to teach water safety and to instruct local Red Cross people in assuming leadership in such matters.

In a land of 10,000 lakes there is much bathing and fishing during the summer months and if those in charge of the various summer resorts and many of the people at summer cottage colonies are taught the first principles of life saving, many people can be resuscitated, who might otherwise fall a victim to the watery element.

The mistake sometimes made in endeavoring to revive half-drowned people is to use such violent means as to fan out the spark of life. The idea of rolling a man on a barrel may have some points in its favor, but it may also roll the life out of the victim.

The visit of the expert, A. S. Moreau, is one of the greatest value and he should be accorded every manner of cooperation when he gives instruction and when he stages his demonstrations.

One of our local life-saving adjuncts is a pulmotor and in the hands of its owner, D. E. Whitney, it has done much good. Mr. Whitney has freely given time and service and in this manner has shown a public spirit of the highest order.

MAGNUS JOHNSON TO SEEK GOVERNORSHIP

THE DISPATCH some time ago carried the prediction that Magnus Johnson would enter the lists for the governorship. This has been verified by the action of the former United States senator who at Boston announced he will run for governor of Minnesota next year.

"They are urging me to run for governor in Minnesota," said Mr. Johnson, "and I am going to do so."

He asserted stoutly that he is still in politics and expected to be as long as he lived, fighting for the farmer.

The entry of Magnus will tend to clarify the situation. His only opponent, we believe, will be the republican candidate for the governorship and as things are now shaping themselves, the logical head of the republican hosts will probably be Governor Christianson.

Mayor George Leach of Minneapolis has come to favorable notice because of his third victory at the polls as mayor of that city.

Christianson, however, has done much constructive work and that includes the inauguration of an extensive economy program and the institution of the new machinery in state government. It has been an unwritten law in politics that one good term deserves another.

TEAPOT DOME

TEAPOT DOME blew off an awful head of steam before it got into the courts, and now that legal minds are surveying the pot, it seems that the domes of the federal judges view the controversy in different lights.

A mixup has now resulted and the Teapot instead of giving vent to one spout, finds itself gifted with two.

Shunting figurative language and getting down to plain facts it appears that Federal Judge Kennedy has given his approval of the Teapot Dome lease; and that followed right on the heels of the decision of Federal Judge McCormick taking an opposite view in the case of the Doheny leases.

Now we have landed in a situation where the U. S. supreme court will have to bring its wisdom to bear in settling a dispute in which one judge holds the California oil leases as very bad and another judge, of equal power and rank, finds the Wyoming leases good.

MAKING IT NEWS

THE only way to arouse interest in anything, in this news-ridden world, is to make news of it. And the St. Paul Daily News shows how it can be done. The way to make news of it is to start a fight over it. Do that, and you can make news, and therefore a popular issue of even the multiplication table, the 10 commandments and the eternal verities.

This is the reason why evolution is in everybody's mouth. Except for its momentary involvement in the other issue of freedom of knowledge and teaching, there is nothing new about evolution. It is no different an issue than it has always been.

But a law, a lawsuit, and the participation of prominent men have made it news. Therefore, everybody is suddenly interested; and the people will learn more about evolution in three months from the newspapers than they would in 30 years from books.

BOBBING WAR IN THE EAST

AFTER things are all settled and the question of a beauty parlor bobbing hair has been won by the women of Minnesota, Newark, N. J., takes up the question, and wonders if bobbing is really barbering. Does a beauty specialist who shingles a lady customer's locks become a mere scissors wielder or a general tonorial practitioner?

One Victor Delacorte of Summit, N. J., has launched an action seeking to have Virginia Gentile, beauty specialist, restrained from bobbing women's hair. Vice Chancellor Berry of New Jersey has expressed the legal opinion that bobbing is not barbering. The attorney for the beauty parlor claims that a young lady who has had a boyish bob has not been barbered but beautified.

HUMORIST IN POLITICS

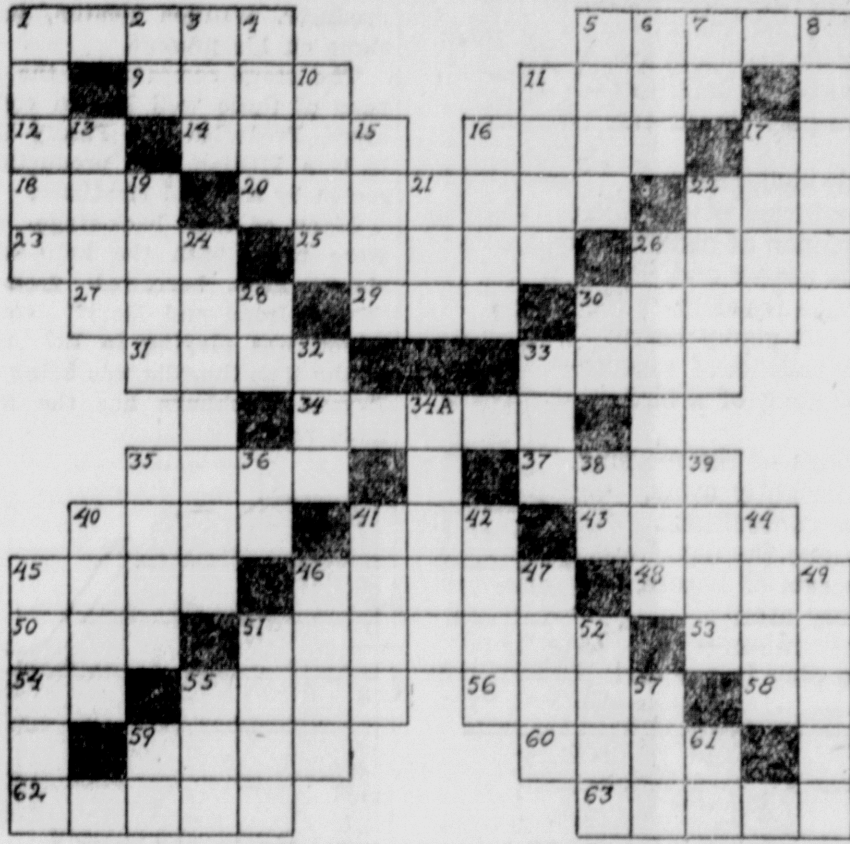

THE idea of a humorist in politics is an unusual one. The reason such humor never pays, as a general rule, is because you sometimes deal with people who can't see a joke and who construe everything with a terrible literalness. The only exception to the rule is the case of the late Tom Marshall, past vice president of the United States.

He enlivened many a dreary session of the senate. One of his pleasant allusions to the office of the vice presidency was the remark that the only fame garnered by such office holder was to serve as name-plate for some innocuous five-cent cigar.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

STOP THAT BACKACHE!

Many Brainerd Folks Have Found the Way

Is a dull, nerve-racking backache wearing you out? Do you feel older and slower than you should? Are you tired, weak and nervous; find it impossible to be happy, or enjoy the good times around you? Then there's something wrong and likely it's your kidneys. Why not get at the cause? Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read what this Brainerd resident says:

Carl Sorman, 709 S. Broadway, says: "My back pained continually. Mornings I was stiff and sore and I couldn't stoop without getting a knife-like jab across my kidneys. My kidneys acted too frequently and caused me annoyance. I used Doan's Pills from Skauge's Drug Co. and they fixed me up in fine shape."

WORDS OF WISDOM IN MOTHER'S WILL

Short Document Worthy of Place in Literature.

Worth more than all her personal belongings was the compact of love, piety, faith and common sense which a New York woman left her family. Like all the great things of life, the message is simple, and valuable enough as an item of interest to the public at large to find space in the newspapers. The letter was written by Mrs. Lydia Harding Hammond, widow of the Rev. John Dennis Hammond, a Methodist minister, to be read by the children after her death. It runs as follows:

"Dear Children—I've just made my will, and this is to tell you what I want done with my personal belongings. Don't keep anything just because it was mine; they are just things, and worn and shabby at that; love doesn't need such things for remembrance.

"Most of my books are old and many of them I haven't looked into for years. I have loved and kept them because they have enlarged my life. Henry is to have them and my Bible, typewriter and Verdun vase.

"I won't be separated from any of you, dear children. I'll just be closer to God and will understand better the ways in which prayers and faith can open ways through which God can help you and I'll be able at least to love you with all my heart and without anything in that love that will make you feel as if I wanted to control you or bother you.

"Bury my body as cheaply as you can and forget it. Don't wear mourning, unless, of course, 'Lyns' wants to. And think of me as alive, alive beyond your farthest thought, and near, and loving you, and well at last, far as the winds of heaven and learning more and more the things I want to know and growing more toward what God wants me to become.

"I think, maybe, John will have our home ready when I come and we'll have a real home at last.

"Love one another. Hold fast to that whether you understand one another or not, and remember nothing really matters except being kind to one another and to all the world as far as you can reach.

"Your Lovingest Mother."

Such faith as this Methodist minister's wife displays, says the Boston Globe, "is the best evidence of those things this woman believed. She lived them and her faith revealed through her will shines like a star. Here in very truth is the victory that overcometh the world, the life eternal, lived now in the midst of time." Says the New York Sun:

"We prefer to accept this letter as more nearly revealing the spirit which today generally animates and inspires American family life than to join those who see in occasional records of domestic discord, parental inattention and filial neglect true indexes of the national character. The beauty of faith, and of hope, and of unselfish devotion its simple phrases record are found in countless households from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Lakes to the Gulf. The power to set forth the sentiments of loyalty and virtues as Mrs. Hammond set them forth is possessed by few, and this gives to her letter a unique and universal value."—Literary Digest.

Drastic Action

"Tuther day Bud Rubb came to the post office which I was running up to last week, and axed if there was any mail for him," related the ex-official at Sandy Mush. "I took a look and told him there wasn't none then, but if I rickylected correctly there had been a post card or suth'n that-a-way a few days before, but 'twasn't there now. He wanted to know what had become of it, and I told him I hadn't no more idy than a rabbit."

"That's a hellva way to do with a feller's mail!" says he.

"Don't you like my way of running this yur postoffice?" I axed him.

"No, I don't," says he.

Military Etiquette

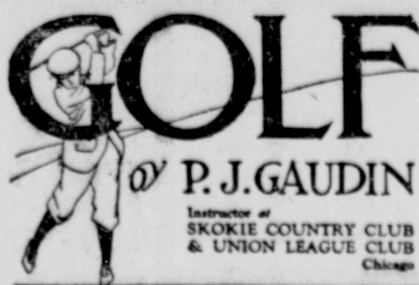

In the Yugoslav army there is to be observed an interesting difference in military manners. The army is composed of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. The traditions of the Serbs favor the spirit of comradeship between officers and men. Off duty the two regard each other as equals. The Croats and Slovenes have been accustomed to Austrian etiquette, which is modeled on the Prussian, under which the men are regarded as inferior creatures.

A major in a Slovene cavalry regiment has just resigned his commission. He could not tolerate the sight of his Serb colonel sitting in a restaurant engaged in friendly conversation with one of his soldiers.

Fruit Stand on One Tree

In the Transvaal a remarkable tree has been grown as an experiment. A lemon tree was trimmed until only three branches remained. Upon one was grafted an orange, upon another a grapefruit, while the third was allowed to remain a lemon, with the result that the tree is now bearing all three fruits at once.

The tree has the dark and paler green leaves belonging to the various fruits. About six specimens of each of the fruits grew on the tree this year.

12—Grip for Putting Stroke.

This is offered as a suggestion in case the golfer cannot find a dependable putting stroke; if he uniformly is a poor putter, or if he has off days without apparent reason. Also, it is offered as a good method if one finds that he can putt accurately at the shorter distances, but that he cannot make the ball keep the line on a 50-foot putt.

The outward change is to overlap the little finger of the right hand with the first finger of the left. It completely changes the feeling of the putt, making it naturally right-handed instead of left-handed. It is no experiment. Walter Hagen uses it almost constantly, and so does Abe Mitchell.

Try this grip and test it by swinging the club back and forth, slowly, along the line. It may be there will be an immediate improvement in the ease with which the club-face is kept at right angles to the line. If so, try hitting the ball into the hole, or into the disc if you are practicing indoors. Keep on with the practice and note carefully which hand is doing the work. You are fortunate if you find the left hand is taking the club back, and the right hand is doing the job of keeping the club at right angles to the line on the forward swing. There is no necessity of changing, however, if the right hand is doing it all. If so, it will be necessary to grow accustomed to controlling the club entirely with the right hand, the left hand being almost negligible.

Try this, however: Make the swing two-handed by taking the club back with the left hand and then transferring the work to the right at the end of the back swing. It isn't hard to do unless you think it is. As a matter of fact, it is the natural thing to do. If you succeed in getting the "feel" of the club with this grip, you have added something of real value to your golfing skill. There is no harm using the grip all the time. That is the better plan if you can make the grip automatic. In any event, try it on the long putts which require a brisk hit to get up to the hole. If you succeed, it is entirely possible you will never use any other grip on the long ones, no matter what grip you prefer on the "wee" ones.

Relic of Stone Age

A prehistoric arsenal dating back to the Stone age has been found near Strood, England. It appears to be the remains of a prehistoric "workshop," and is on a chalk cliff close to Frilingsbury church, within sight of Rochester cathedral. Working on a slight clue, after eight days' digging, the searchers unearthed some 4,000 flint weapons and tools. "All the flints were found in heaps about three feet high, and there were 17 separate heaps exactly as they had been piled up when the workmen knocked off work—possibly 50,000 years ago. Everybody was greatly disappointed that no human bones were found. The men who chipped these flints were living in Britain when the woolly rhinoceros and the hairy elephant roamed the Medway valley."

Work for the Camera

Archaeologists always find it rather difficult to keep their native diggers up to the mark. But the men who are excavating the Punic ruins at Utica, near Carthage, have found out that all they need to do is to take moving pictures of the work. The laborers who know that the reels are to be shown at the moving picture theater in Tunis, where they can enjoy the felicity of seeing themselves on the screen, display the most extraordinary industry. Count De Pronar, the head of the expedition, says that, if the Carthaginians had had the moving picture camera instead of the whip with which to spur their slaves to labor, they could have erected temples and palaces that would have reached the clouds.—Youth's Companion.

Dead Men Tell No Tales
Grand Rapids Herald-Review
"Dead Robbers Require No Prosecution."

The bankers of Minnesota are organizing 4,000 ex-service men to put a stop to bank robbing and store looting. Plans for arming the men are now being worked out and within a short time there will be news of good results.

But to consider the matter further, is it not a reflection upon modern civilization that four thousand men in one state must be banded together to prevent crimes of robbery?

It is very much like the old days when the government did not possess the strength to enforce its laws. Officers of the law were unable to cope with the situations as they arose. The courts were slow in prosecution. The law was then taken into the hands of citizens. The horse thief, then the worst criminal, was caught, condemned and shot, all in a brief time. Order was restored.

Today we are doing much the same thing in Minnesota. Citizens are taking into their own hands the protection of property, the guarding of their lives. It is not a new, but rather an unusual thing these days of government, taxes and civilization.

Perhaps it is necessary. It should not be. The government should do its duty.

Boys will be girls and girls will be boys this season, if they continue to dress as they now do.

On Riverside Drive, where one gets no nearer to sailing than gazing down upon the Hudson River, the flapper element is actually wearing white sailor trousers with accompanying white middie blouses. At Grant's Tomb on a recent Sunday three young misses, dressed in snugly-fit sailor trousers, were sitting with their rather effeminately dressed escorts, whose colors schemes verged on lavender, pale grays and baby blues.

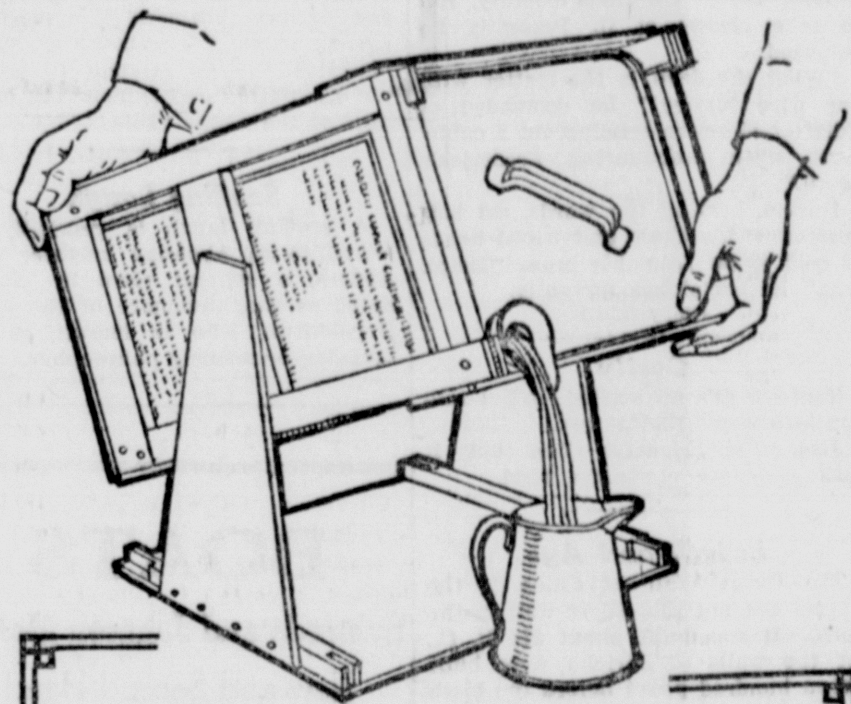

The policeman on the beat did not deem it necessary to accuse the young girls of parading in masculine attire since, in spite of their boyish haircuts and trousers, the girls' curves were so apparent that their disguise was incomplete. Because of excessive heat no one seemed to take notice of the trouser fad among young females, which we saw repeated along the Drive.

The younger set is forever springing some new fad which only the young dare attempt. In the Motion Picture colony in Hollywood they are wearing skirts to the knees, half socks and hand-painted knees and

WORDS OF WISDOM IN MOTHER'S WILL

Short Document Worthy of Place in Literature.

Worth more than all her personal belongings was the compact of love, piety, faith and common sense which a New York woman left her family. Like all the great things of life, the message is simple, and valuable enough as an item of interest to the public at large to find space in the newspapers. The letter was written by Mrs. Lydia Harding Hammond, widow of the Rev. John Dennis Hammond, a Methodist minister, to be read by the children after her death. It runs as follows:

"Dear Children—I've just made my will, and this is to tell you what I want done with my personal belongings. Don't keep anything just because it was mine; they are just things, and worn and shabby at that; love doesn't need such things for remembrance.

"Most of my books are old and many of them I haven't looked into for years. I have loved and kept them because they have enlarged my life. Henry is to have them and my Bible, typewriter and Verdun vase.

"I won't be separated from any of you, dear children. I'll just be closer to God and will understand better the ways in which prayers and faith can open ways through which God can help you and I'll be able at least to love you with all my heart and without anything in that love that will make you feel as if I wanted to control you or bother you.

"Bury my body as cheaply as you can and forget it. Don't wear mourning, unless, of course, 'Lynx' wants to. And think of me as alive, alive beyond your farthest thought, and near, and loving you, and well at last, far as the winds of heaven and learning more and more the things I want to know and growing more toward what God wants me to become.

"I think, maybe, John will have our home ready when I come and we'll have a real home at last.

"Love one another. Hold fast to that whether you understand one another or not, and remember nothing really matters except being kind to one another and to all the world as far as you can reach.

"Your Lovingest Mother."

Such faith as this Methodist minister's wife displays, says the Boston Globe, "is the best evidence of those things this woman believed. She lived them and her faith revealed through her will shines like a star. Here in very truth is the victory that overcame the world, the life eternal, lived now in the midst of time." Says the New York Sun:

"We prefer to accept this letter as more nearly revealing the spirit which today generally animates and inspires American family life than to join those who see in occasional records of domestic discord, parental inattention and filial neglect true indexes of the national character. The beauty of faith, and of hope, and of unselfish devotion its simple phrases record are found in countless households from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Lakes to the Gulf. The power to set forth the sentiments of loyalty and virtues as Mrs. Hammond set them forth is possessed by few, and this gives to her letter a unique and universal value."—Literary Digest.

Drastic Action

"Tuther day Bud Rubb came to the post office which I was running up to last week, and axed if there was any mail for him," related the ex-official at Sandy Mush. "I took a look and told him there wasn't none then, but if I ricklected correctly there had been a post card or suth'n that a-way a few days before, but 'twasn't there now. He wanted to know what had become of it, and I told him I hadn't no more idy than a rabbit."

"That's a hellva way to do with a feller's mail," says he.

"Don't you like my way of running this yur postoffice?" I axed him.

"No, I don't," says he.

"Well then, by gosh, you just take it and run it yoreself, and b'durn to you!" says I. And I got right out and left the devilish office on his hands. That's prezizely what I done!"—Kansas City Star.

Cracks Whip in Church, According to Custom

Our own country is so young in years and its customs and conditions have changed so rapidly during its brief existence that we know nothing of those curious customs which persist for generation after generation in a venerable country like England. In some English manors singular practices are still observed. For example, says Dr. G. C. Williamson in his book "Curious Survivals," at Calster in Lincolnshire, a most peculiar service was retained until the middle of the Nineteenth century.

The owner of the estate, known as Brigg, held certain lands subject to the performance on Palm Sunday of every year of the ceremony of cracking a whip in the church; while the clergyman was reading the first lesson the tenant cracked the whip three distinct times in the church porch and then folded it up. As soon as the second lesson was commenced he went up to the clergyman, presented the whip to him, held it over his head and waved it three times, holding it in that position during the reading of the lesson. The whip had a purse tied at the end of it, which was supposed to contain thirty pieces of silver; it had also four pieces of elm attached to it, representing the Gospels. The three cracks were typical of St. Peter's denial of his Lord, and the waving of the whip over the clergyman's head was supposed to be an act of homage to the Blessed Trinity.

The origin of the ceremonial goes back to exceedingly remote times and is said to have been connected with a penance imposed on some tenant for an act of murder.—Youth's Companion.

Germans in Argentina

German immigration is one of the outstanding features of colonization work in Argentina this year. The latest enterprise is one concluded by a powerful German financial firm in Buenos Aires whereby nearly 50,000 acres of a big estate known as La Mercedes, owned by the South American Cattle and Farming company, a Liebig subsidiary, are handed over to the financial concern to be colonized. The property, ideally situated as to water and other essentials, is being surveyed and divided. Seventy German families have arrived and are located in homes erected for them. One hundred and fifty more families are en route from Hamburg. Arrangements have been made through the National Mortgage bank of Argentina whereby the settlers have 30 years in which to pay for their homes.

Old Warrior Remembered

The authorities of Malmesbury, Wiltshire, England, have set themselves the task of ascertaining the color and the cut of the whiskers worn by old King Athelstan, who died in 925. They have looked through ancient books, studied statutes and pored over archives, but up to the present time with no success. They are not discouraged, however, and the search is still going on, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A fund has been subscribed for the erection of a stained glass portrait to King Athelstan in the local town hall. It seems Athelstan drove out the Danes 1,000 years ago and the people of Malmesbury want to commemorate his act.

Dogs Carry Watches

A new kind of a watch dog has made its appearance in London. These dogs do not need any special training to be efficient, nor do they differ in pedigree from any of the other useless lapdogs that escort their mistresses on sunny afternoons along the Mall.

What makes these pets distinctive is that on their collars they wear tiny watches, often set with gems, and sometimes with little bells that strike the hours. A woman from San Diego, Cal., is credited with having started the fashion, which the Bond street jewelers were not slow to encourage.

A Round Oath

The bishop of London is said to figure in the following incident. He had been salmon fishing in the Highlands when two ghillies were heard subsequently discussing his merits, and one of them remarked: "He's a very nice gentleman, he is, but he do swear something dreadful."

"Swear?" exclaimed the other, aghast. "And him a bishop?"

"Aye," said the first. "A salmon started to rise and I asked him, 'Shall I row after that d-d fish, m'lord?' And he said, 'Yes, do!'"—Sporting and Dramatic News.

The "Story" Over the Wire

By DONALD A. KAHN

WNU Service

DURBIN, the telegraph editor, could take news off the wire, edit it, put it on a typewriter, hold a fairly coherent conversation with a casual visitor, and smoke a corncob pipe, all at one and the same time.

One afternoon, as Durbin was taking and typing a story about a three-legged calf, and discussing, between paragraphs, the details of a local burglary with Jenks, the police reporter, Edison, the managing editor, joined in the conversation.

"What's that you're taking?" he asked Durbin. "Anything for the six o'clock extra?" Durbin jammed the tobacco down in his cob, slipped a fresh sheet of copy paper into his typewriter, and spat on the floor, commencing, again, to pound away.

"Three-legged calf born in Jasper township," he responded, between puffs.

"For heaven's sake, cut it!" objected Edison. "Can't you give us something decent, Durbin?"

"Of course," replied the telegrapher, sarcastically, "I don't receive the news; I just sit here and make it up as I go along." Good-natured Jenks, he of the police beat, laughed in appreciation of the nightly snail between the telegrapher and his superior.

During a lull on the wire Durbin chanced to glance above him to where part of a stereotype mat, a likeness of King George, patched a hole in the glass partition. The mat suggested to him the idea of fixing up a bogus message and roping Edison in on it. Just as the editor was ready to send it to the composing room, he would put him wise and enjoy a laugh. He winked at Jenks. The clicking of the telegraph receiver commenced once more. Durbin pulled at his corncob with assumed excitement.

"Hello!" he shouted to Edison. "Here you are! London cablegram says King Frederick of Graustark has kicked the bucket!"

"Just in time for the extra!" rejoiced the managing editor, biting like a fish. "Considerate of him." He leaned over Durbin's shoulder, gulping down the "details" as the telegrapher punched them out on the machine. Durbin's imagination and the accompanying typewriter had just reached the matter of funeral arrangements when he was hurriedly called to the telephone by the copy boy. During the moment he was talking Jenks stepped down to the business office to wheedle an advance of five dollars from the chancellor of the exchequer.

"My house on fire!" screamed Durbin, rushing from the phone. Grabbing his hat he was out the door and down the street before any one could stop him. Barton, Durbin's assistant, was summoned from the files room and put in charge of the instrument.

"Get the rest of King Frederick," ordered the editor.

For a moment Barton listened to the dots and dashes. "It's something about a three-legged calf," he stated.

"Tell with the calf!" exclaimed

Edison, impatiently. "We want the rest of the funeral stuff for the extra. Break in on them."

Following instructions, Barton interrupted, and demanded more on the royal funeral. But the sender, taking the request as a joke, threatened to fine the operator.

"Let 'em go!" decreed Edison. "We've got enough to fill a page anyway."

In an incredibly short time Durbin's fake on the death of the Danish monarch was set on the linotypes, cast by the stereotypers, and screwed to the presses. With pictures of the king, the story, red-inked, monopolized the first page of the extra.

Of course no other paper carried this "news." Edison congratulated himself on what he took to be the superiority of his telegraph and cable service. The entire edition, in the hands of the news boys, sold out in a few moments.

"Just my chimney burned out," announced the telegraph editor, presently returning to the office. "Where's Jenks?"

"He left the same time you did," replied Edison. "Why?"

Durbin turned ghastly pale. "Did he put you wise to that Frederick story?" he gasped.

"Sure, we got it—beat 'em all," answered the managing editor. "Didn't you see the extra?"

"Lord!" moaned Durbin. "You used that fluke!"

"The fire at his house put him on the blink," observed Barton, not unkindly.

From the next room the telegraph instrument began to make a noise. Barton, noting Durbin's inability, ran to take charge of it. Presently he returned.

"What the devil is the matter with our wire service?" he demanded of Edison. "They're sending out a cablegram again announcing Frederick's death."

Durbin, hearing the words, sat bolt upright in his chair and wiped beads of cold sweat from his brow. "Thank God," he exclaimed fervently.

Vainly Search for Lost Cremona Varnish

Says the Encyclopedia Britannica, apropos violin varnish: "The varnish of the old Italian violins contributed the most important element of their superiority in tone to their modern copies." "Save the surface and you save all," carols the varnish vendor from the corner paint shop. This is as true concerning violins as villas, writes Otto Meyer.

Charles Reade, the famous English novelist, who was also an authority on violins, did not give up the search for the lost Cremona varnish until the very end of his life, when he admitted, "I have not been able to discover the secret." And yet it was no secret in Stradivarius' day except that each maker mixed and prepared his own varnish and had his particular and individual way of applying it to his instruments. But with the introduction of the quickly drying and more convenient spirit varnishes the violin-makers gradually lost their skill or their interest in the old-style product, which fades rapidly out of the picture; and with the end of the Eighteenth century is gone for good.

As Hewer remarks in one of his books: "Once it was generally known how copper could be hardened; how Stonehenge was posed; how the ancient galleys were rowed; how the old masters mixed their colors; how the poisons of the Medici were distilled; how amber varnish was made and how applied; and today nobody knows!"

Those of us who have been privileged to gaze upon the supreme combination of wood and varnish in the "Dolphin Strad." have seen one of the few perfect things on this most imperfect planet. The name itself, the "Dolphin," is an attempt to picture the undulating and shimmering loveliness of the magic violin.

Cracks Whip in Church, According to Custom

Our own country is so young in years and its customs and conditions have changed so rapidly during its brief existence that we know nothing of those curious customs which persist for generation after generation in a venerable country like England. In some English manors singular practices are still observed. For example, says Dr. G. C. Williamson in his book "Curious Survivals," at Calster in Lincolnshire, a most peculiar service was retained until the middle of the Nineteenth century.

The owner of the estate, known as Brigg, held certain lands subject to the performance on Palm Sunday of every year of the ceremony of cracking a whip in the church; while the clergyman was reading the first lesson the tenant cracked the whip three distinct times in the church porch and then folded it up. As soon as the second lesson was commenced he went up to the clergyman, presented the whip to him, held it over his head and waved it three times, holding it in that position during the reading of the lesson. The whip had a purse tied at the end of it, which was supposed to contain thirty pieces of silver; it had also four pieces of elm attached to it, representing the Gospels. The three cracks were typical of St. Peter's denial of his Lord, and the waving of the whip over the clergyman's head was supposed to be an act of homage to the Blessed Trinity.

The origin of the ceremonial goes back to exceedingly remote times and is said to have been connected with a penance imposed on some tenant for an act of murder.—Youth's Companion.

Germans in Argentina

German immigration is one of the outstanding features of colonization work in Argentina this year. The latest enterprise is one concluded by a powerful German financial firm in Buenos Aires whereby nearly 50,000 acres of a big estate known as La Mercedes, owned by the South American Cattle and Farming company, a Liebig subsidiary, are handed over to the financial concern to be colonized. The property, ideally situated as to water and other essentials, is being surveyed and divided. Seventy German families have arrived and are located in homes erected for them. One hundred and fifty more families are en route from Hamburg. Arrangements have been made through the National Mortgage bank of Argentina whereby the settlers have 30 years in which to pay for their homes.

Old Warrior Remembered

The authorities of Malmesbury, Wiltshire, England, have set themselves the task of ascertaining the color and the cut of the whiskers worn by old King Athelstan, who died in 925. They have looked through ancient books, studied statutes and pored over archives, but up to the present time with no success. They are not discouraged, however, and the search is still going on, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A fund has been subscribed for the erection of a stained glass portrait to King Athelstan in the local town hall. It seems Athelstan drove out the Danes 1,000 years ago and the people of Malmesbury want to commemorate his act.

Dogs Carry Watches

A new kind of a watch dog has made its appearance in London. These dogs do not need any special training to be efficient, nor do they differ in pedigree from any of the other useless lapdogs that escort their mistresses on sunny afternoons along the Mall.

What makes these pets distinctive is that on their collars they wear tiny watches, often set with gems, and sometimes with little bells that strike the hours. A woman from San Diego, Cal., is credited with having started the fashion, which the Bond street jewelers were not slow to encourage.

A Round Oath

The bishop of London is said to figure in the following incident. He had been salmon fishing in the Highlands when two gillies were heard subsequently discussing his merits, and one of them remarked: "He's a very nice gentleman, he is, but he do swear something dreadful."

"Swear?" exclaimed the other, aghast. "And him a bishop?" "Aye," said the first. "A salmon started to rise and I asked him, 'Shall I row after that d-d fush, m'lord?' And he said, 'Yes, do!'"—Sporting and Dramatic News.

BRAINERD BOYS BAND FUNCTION

Concert and Dance to be Given at Lum Park Thursday Evening, July 2

PUBLIC URGED TO ATTEND

Proceeds of Dance to be Used to Aid
Band in Advancement

The Brainerd Boys Band will give a concert followed by a dance, both at Lum park, on Thursday evening, July 2nd, to which the public is invited and urged to attend.

The proceeds of the dance will be used by the band in meeting the expenses incident to its maintenance and advancement. Preceding the concert the band will play several selections on the streets of the downtown district.

The park board is improving the grandstand at Lum park, the one built out over the lake, by remodeling it, building a canopy over it, and enclosing it with screen. The canopy is a valuable improvement, since it aids in throwing the music out over the park and the lake, making it possible to hear the concerts farther and plainer. The screened-in grandstand does away with the difficulty of trying to play and fight mosquitoes at the same time.

The boys band, with its forty members, has made for itself a prominent place among the musical organizations of the city. Its concert of two weeks ago at Lum park was largely attended and all were loud in their praise of the high class program rendered. The director, E. A. Page, beside improving the playing of the band, has been instrumental in adding many new members, and there are several boys planning to join in the near future.

The public is asked to keep the concert and dance of July 2nd in mind, and to support both events by a large attendance.

LIFE SAVING METHODS TAUGHT

Representative of Such Department to Visit Local Chapter of Red Cross

AIMS OF TUITION STATED

To Assist Local Chapter in Developing Leadership Stimulating
Interest in Water Safety

Through the efforts of the Brainerd Chapter, American Red Cross, this city is to be visited by a representative of the life saving department of the Red Cross, on August 10th and 11th.

The special purpose of this visit is to assist the local chapter in developing leadership and stimulating interest in water safety and first aid throughout this territory.

During the time spent in Brainerd this representative, A. S. Moreau, will give examinations to those who are desirous of qualifying as life saving examiners, and will review the tests with persons who have passed the life saving tests but are not examiners and will give instruction in life saving methods and first aid to Boy Scouts, firemen, policemen and any and all other groups interested in this important work.

Another feature of this visitation will be a public demonstration. This will include methods of rescue and the reviving of drowning persons, as well as swimming and life saving stunts. It will also be possible to have him speak before the local civic clubs.

Mr. Moreau is more than an expert in his line. He is an artist and an exceptionally well qualified instructor, being able to handle both the theoretical and practical sides of his work with equal ability.

It will be to the interests of everyone in Brainerd to attend Mr. Moreau's demonstrations. Living in a lake region it is contended by the local Red Cross that too much attention cannot be given by citizens to life saving and first aid methods.

The Brainerd chapter feels exceptionally fortunate in being able to secure Mr. Moreau, and appreciates the National Red Cross' kindness in making his visit possible.

Bethlehem Lutheran Aid

The ladies aid of the Bethlehem Lutheran church will meet on Thursday afternoon, June 25th, in the church parlors. The entertaining ladies are Mrs. Gilbert Antonsen and Mrs. F. W. Hanson. Rev. Huset will be present. Members are urged to attend, and visitors are welcome.

It will include new steel pullmans and observation cars, with barber and valet service, and diners serving the famous Northern Pacific menus. Leaving Minneapolis at 9 o'clock Friday evening, July 24th, this train will follow the Northern Pacific route to Seattle and will return by way of Vancouver, Lake Louise and Banff, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, arriving in Minneapolis over the Soo Line on August 4th, using the same train equipment the entire trip.

The conclave is to be held in Seattle on July 27th, 28th, 29th and 30th, and the city is making extensive preparations for entertaining the thousands of visiting Knights and ladies who are planning to attend.

REALTORS MEET IN DETROIT, MICH.

(By United Press)

Detroit, June 24.—Aeroplanes, special trains, automobiles and boats brought 5,000 realtors and their families from every section of the United States to attend the National Association of Real Estate boards which convened here for a four day session.

Every state in the union, and practically every town of any size sent delegates to what promises to be the most colorful of more than 200 conventions scheduled for Detroit during the year.

Benjamin L. Coolidge, vice-president of the Chicago Real Estate Board and Pierce Jones, executive secretary of the board, arranged the speediest trip by taking a big Martin bombing plane.

The "All-California All-Western Special" left Los Angeles June 17 via the Southern Pacific. The train stopped off one day in San Francisco to gather the northwestern delegates, and then sped on to Detroit.

This party will return via the Canadian Northwest, arriving back in San Francisco July 6.

A bannered, caravan of automobiles, carrying a huge lump of West Virginia coal, came from Huntington, W. Va., Brief stops were made en route.

The Detroit Real Estate Board has made extremely elaborate preparations for entertaining the delegates, including trips to all the great automobile plants, and across the river to Windsor where the more or less famous 4.4 percent beer runs.

$400 CONTRACT FOR FIREWORKS

American Legion Prepares For 4th of July Celebration in Brainerd

FOR DAYLIGHT AND NIGHT

Entire Independence Day Festivity
Staged at Lum
Park

A contract for fireworks, totalling $400, was placed on Tuesday evening by the American Legion, for its Fourth of July celebration.

These fireworks are the best that money can buy, and contain many new features, which the company manufacturing them claims have never been incorporated in such displays before.

There will be daylight fireworks for the afternoon celebration, and evening displays that will light up the night like daylight, says the committee in charge of this portion of the celebration. All of the fireworks will be presented at Lum park, where the Legion will stage the entire Independence Day observance.

From the hearty response that has been accorded the idea of celebrating the Fourth in Brainerd, the Legion anticipates the largest gathering that has attended such a program in many a day. Not only from the city itself, but the crowds gather, but from the surrounding territory for miles around, for the news of the coming event has already traveled far. The success of the Legion's celebration of last year, in which an enviable record was made, has gone far to assure the success of this year's observance, which will be on a much larger scale than was ever before attempted.

"Celebrate the Fourth in Brainerd" is the appeal that is made by both the American Legion, and by the patriotic citizens who are giving every assistance to the preparation of the day's festivities. The territory tributary to this city expects a big celebration, and in this there will be no disappointment.

Junior Young Peoples Society

The Junior Young Peoples society of the Bethlehem Lutheran church, 307 Seventh street, will meet on Friday evening, June 26th, in the church basement, and will be entertained by H. Rosenberg and Charles Ellison. An excellent program will be rendered. All members are asked to be present.

Lively's stock of Ford parts is complete in every detail. Open day and night.

Lester Peterson, son of Mrs. Olive Peterson, narrowly escaped serious injury on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Peterson is employed in the Northern Pacific shops, and a workman engaged in above him is said to have carelessly dropped a chisel, which struck Peterson on the left temple, making an ugly wound, that required several stitches.

Had the chisel dropped a little more to the right, it might have fractured Peterson's skull, resulting fatally. The injured man was able to resume his duties today.

Window

R. R. Gould, Carl Wright and Amos Maghan have returned from St. Paul, where they trimmed the window at the office of the Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota Association, St. Paul, advertising the summer playground facilities of the Brainerd lake region.

"Brainerd wants you to spend your vacation here" was the theme expressed by the window display, which has already attracted much favorable comment. The assistance of one of the foremost window trimmers of St. Paul was secured in designing the decorations.

The large map prepared in Brainerd, showing the location of St. Paul and Brainerd and the highway connecting the two cities, forms the background of the window. On each side of this map are large panels of green velvet, which carry actual photographs of lake scenes in the vicinity of Brainerd. The whole stands upon a carpet of green velvet.

The office of the Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota Association is on the ground floor of the Ryan hotel. There are two windows used by the various centers throughout the lake region of the state, each being allowed the use of a window for two weeks during the summer. The city of Alexandria is using the window opposite to the one trimmed by Brainerd.

Much credit is due J. M. Gorham, proprietor of the Ten Thousand Lakes studio, of this city, who went to no little trouble and expense in collecting suitable photographs to be used in the window display. Mr. Gorham furnished all of the pictures used.

ELKS STILL HEAD PERCENTAGE COLUMN

YANKS WAITED TOO LONG TO RENEW MEN

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, June 24.—Forced to make over a ball club that has disintegrated with age, the New York Yankees are facing the wait of many trying years or a lavish expenditure of money.

Four years ago, experienced baseball writers around the American League circuit expressed the opinion: "We'll have to wait until the Yankees have gone to pieces. When they go they'll stay gone for a long while and then our clubs will have a chance."

The Yankees started going last year, when success and age dulled their ambition and brought them into a loafing spell that caused them to lose the pennant to the Washington Senators. They finished the job of going this season and they were so far gone after six weeks of the pennant race that the team had to be torn to pieces.

The Yankees, in trying to build over a championship team, are in the same position that Connie Mack was ten years ago when he broke up one of the greatest of all teams and predicted that he would build it over in a year. The Yankees have more money and they are more willing to spend than the Athletics, but the question arises, "Where are they going to buy the players?"

Connie Mack went to the college diamonds and the bush league lots, but eight years of industrious search produced nothing and Mack had to go into the market. After ten years he succeeded in building up a team that may win the American League pennant.

Without quoting exact figures, Mack estimates that in those ten years he spent $385,000 for players. It is impossible to estimate how much more the lean years cost the club when the Philadelphia fans refused to pay money to see Connie working in his baseball laboratory.

With a $5,000,000 investment, the Yankees can't spend ten years building over a team and if they are to have success quicker than Mack they will have to discover what was wrong with Mack's methods and experiment with their own.

In Earl Combs, Pee-wee Wanninger, Buster Gehrig and Benny Bengough, the Yankees have a good foundation upon which to start their work of reconstruction, but the management of the team must get a chill when it looks over the pitching staff and wonders where three or four good young pitchers are to be found.

It so happens that two or three other clubs are in the process of being rebuilt and if the Yankees find prospects in the minor leagues, they will have to get to them first and pay more than the other clubs.

Minor league players are all gamblers. The failure of so many fancy priced stars from the minor leagues is the best evidence of that. Even the less touted players, who do not carry such high purchase prices, involve a heavy expenditure of their money in developments.

Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, who is one of the best informed men in baseball, estimates that it costs a major league club more than $50,000 a year to maintain a scouting organization and that the club is lucky if it gets one good player. The cost of maintaining a scouting system includes the salary of scouts, the payment of expenses to and from the training camps for a flock of rookies and their board for six weeks. The club also faces obligations in placing young players out for development with minor league clubs.

The worst problem the Yankees will have to face will come when Babe Ruth passes. Even with the best of luck the Babe hardly can expect to stay for more than three more years. He is too brittle and he plays too hard to last as long as Speaker, Collins and Cobb. When Ruth is through, it is hard to figure what will become of the Yankees.

AMERICAN IN CLOSE VICTORY

JOHN HENNESSY OF INDIANAPOLIS DEFEATS R. N. DICKS OF ENGLAND

Seven thousand chilly spectators, wearing furs, overcoats and scarfs, watched the playing in the famous center court through a slippery, uncomfortable and not very interesting afternoon.

White Lake, Mich., June 24.—Big-lunged if not long-horned, a pair of Texans are expected to be the second arrivals for the 18th annual speed boat Mississippi Valley Association regatta here July 3rd, 4th and 5th.

These Texan rangers have cleaned up everything in the southwest in the speed boat line. With Lone Star State honors hanging to their belts Messrs. Robertson and Sellman, Houstonian champions have entered against "King Tut Jr." owned by Cliff E. Padgett of Illinois; "Jay Eye See" by Wadewitz of Racine, Wis.; "Bullet" owned by W. E. Buelow of Chicago; "Ethel XI" by C. P. Hanley of Muscatine, Iowa; "Miss Century" by Chas. J. Venn of Chicago and "Marmon I" by Casebeer and Helmick of Terre Haute, Ind. Unless Texas miles are shorter than elsewhere in this country, the 510 class records will go to smash in White Lake. These men from the land of cows and cotton have unofficial marks that are already far faster than any that exist officially. The cattle country cracks shipped their outfits on June 15th and they are expected here daily.

The first of the string of forty odd contenders reached here on Monday. She is "Greased Lightning" owned by Wm. P. Bigelow, hailing from the Chesapeake Bay port of Easton, Maryland. Bigelow placed in the classic at Palm Beach Florida in February in the maiden race of his entry. She has been tuned and tried since then and her owner expects to lug eastward the titles in the 151 cubic inch class which have been held for years by mid-western boat racing men.

Golf and Live Long

(By United Press) Philadelphia, Pa., June 24.—Golf as a remedy for ills is nothing new. It was prescribed and commended as an exercise by a Philadelphia physician, Dr. Benjamin Rush, one of the first professors of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, in a book "Sermons to Gentlemen on Temperance and Exercise," written in 1772.

Recommending golf with other exercises such as tennis, swimming, skating and running, Dr. Rush described the game as one much in vogue in Scotland. "A large common," he wrote, "in which there are several little holes, is chosen for the purpose. It is played with little leather balls stuffed with feathers; and sticks made somewhat in the form of a bandy-wicket. He who puts the ball in a given number of holes with the fewest strokes, gets the game. The late Dr. McKenzie used to say that a man would live ten years the longer for using this exercise once or twice a week."

ELKS STILL HEAD PERCENTAGE COLUMN

YANKS WAITED TOO LONG TO RENEW MEN

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, June 24.—Forced to make over a ball club that has disintegrated with age, the New York Yankees are facing the wait of many trying years or a lavish expenditure of money.

Four years ago, experienced baseball writers around the American League circuit expressed the opinion: "We'll have to wait until the Yankees have gone to pieces. When they go they'll stay gone for a long while and then our clubs will have a chance."

The Yankees started going last year, when success and age dulled their ambition and brought them into a loafing spell that caused them to lose the pennant to the Washington Senators. They finished the job of going this season and they were so far gone after six weeks of the pennant race that the team had to be torn to pieces.

The Yankees, in trying to build over a championship team, are in the same position that Connie Mack was ten years ago when he broke up one of the greatest of all teams and predicted that he would build it over in a year. The Yankees have more money and they are more willing to spend than the Athletics, but the question arises: "Where are they going to buy the players?"

Connie Mack went to the college diamonds and the bush league lots, but eight years of industrious search produced nothing and Mack had to go into the market. After ten years he succeeded in building up a team that may win the American League pennant.

Without quoting exact figures, Mack estimates that in those ten years he spent $385,000 for players. It is impossible to estimate how much more the lean years cost the club when the Philadelphia fans refused to pay money to see Connie working in his baseball laboratory.

With a $5,000,000 investment, the Yankees can't spend ten years building over a team and if they are to have success quicker than Mack they will have to discover what was wrong with Mack's methods and experiment with their own.

In Earl Combs, Pee-wee Wanninger, Buster Gehrig and Benny Bengough, the Yankees have a good foundation upon which to start their work of reconstruction, but the management of the team must get a chill when it looks over the pitching staff and wonders where three or four good young pitchers are to be found.

It so happens that two or three other clubs are in the process of being rebuilt and if the Yankees find prospects in the minor leagues, they will have to get to them first and pay more than the other clubs.

Minor league players are all gamblers. The failure of so many fancy priced stars from the minor leagues is the best evidence of that. Even the less touted players, who do not carry such high purchase prices, involve a heavy expenditure of their money in developments.

Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, who is one of the best informed men in baseball, estimates that it costs a major league club more than $50,000 a year to maintain a scouting organization and that the club is lucky if it gets one good player. The cost of maintaining a scouting system includes the salary of scouts, the payment of expenses to and from the training camps for a flock of rookies and their board for six weeks. The club also faces obligations in placing young players out for development with minor league clubs.

The worst problem the Yankees will have to face will come when Babe Ruth passes. Even with the best of luck the Babe hardly can expect to star for more than three more years. He is too brittle and he plays too hard to last as long as Speaker, Collins and Cobb. When Ruth is through, it is hard to figure what will become of the Yankees.
